Emanuel Josef Margold (1888 - 1962) was an Austrian architect and designer. He studied at the k.k. Kunstgewerbeschule and attended the architecture class of Professor Josef Hoffmann. As a teacher at the Kunstgewerbeschule in Vienna, Josef Hoffmann trained some very talented architects and designers. His unmistakable style influenced several generations of artists and had a long-lasting effect. During his student days, Margold took part in numerous competitions, which brought him his first successes. Among other things, Margold assisted Josef Hoffmann at the Wiener Werkstätte from 1909/10.
